THE OLDEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN JEFFERSON COUNTY - THE ONLY COUNTY WIDE (OUTSIDE LOUISVILLE) NEWSPAPER

Jefferson County's HOME NEWSPAPER

Vol. 42 No. 17

40 YEARS AGO

The spring that bubbled 'neath the hill, and the summer that came, close by the spreading beech, is very low: 'twas once so high that we could almost reach; And kneeling down to take a drink.

Dear Tom, I started so, To think how very much I've changed Since forty years ago."

J. S. Funk of Lake City, formerly of Kentucky, writes, forty years ago, that while the Land of the Flowers still has many attractions and he has prospered there for a number of years - yet - when he reads The Jeffersonian, each week, it makes him homesick and he is considering returning to his native heath soon. Lake City is all right, a beautiful and thriving little city, fast growing, and not many miles west of Jacksonville, the gateway to Orlando, Lakeland, Tampa, St. Petersburg and other cities south. Living costs are low, Florida raises much better citrus fruit - but - it isn't Kentucky. He sympathizes with many other Kentuckians who have come to Florida and are secretly yearning to get back to their old home state. Happy were the days, he writes, that he spent in and about Jefferson. He liked to roam, left of his own accord, but now - he has decided that he wants to get back to "Old Kentucky."

Buechel was still on a boom with more houses going up. Henry Kaiser, Sr. was building a new barn; George Hartman had finished the foundation for his new home. Warren Frederick had purchased an "elegant new auto car" and was riding around with invited friends. Mr. Roskamp of Louisville would move to Buechel with his family to occupy their new home here. . . .

Miss Mabel Frederick, daughter of Mrs. Belle Frederick of Buechel, won first prize at the county fair, Fern Creek, for being able to harness her own horses, in shortest time. She received a prize of diamond and unbluish, hitch to a rig, ride around the oval as well as the prize.

John Kimmel of Louisville, purchasing several acres of land from Jake Greenberg, was preparing to build a home near Buechel. . . . George Bridwell had bought from his brother, Milton, a half interest in the Bridwell and Cornell livery stable in the Jeffersonian, for $1,800. . . . The Jeffersonian was offering prizes for improved spelling, writing, best original essay, to public school pupils. Also prizes for attendance, general average, in credits, deportment. . . . The Fern Creek baseball team defeated the champions of Louisville, 10-4. The Harcourts, Louisville, next week.

The Stout and Omer families were to have a reunion at the Fern Creek Fairgrounds the coming Sunday. All members were invited. . . . Miss Mary Stout, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stout, made the announcement, she living at present in Peoria, Ill. The County Fair was a success at Fern Creek a week ago, and this week the second annual of the colored fair is on there. Ed Taylor was president and Warren LaRue, secretary. A sham battle and a cake walk were featured. The death of Mrs. Maggie Reed was reported from South Park, September 2. Born in Fern Creek, she was the daughter of Hugh Reed and was 30 years of age. Internment was at Pennsylvania Run.

A sale at auction of 661 acres of land belonging to the historic Thompson estate on the Salt River road near Kosmosdale netted $32,000 in 20 acre tracts. The property was sold by the Columbus Trust Co. and it was announced that many of the purchasers will immediately build.

"Jeffersontown, often referred to as a sleepy old place, seemed to emerge from its slumber and was very wide awake last Saturday night," The Jeffersonian reports. The citizens deemed that they were real live human beings and made a desperate effort to be public spirited by attending the law fee in 'bunches.' Money was raised for the cemetery improvement fund. Some, unable to attend, sent cakes and a liberal supply of other things" to make the fete a success which it was. There was attendance from several nearby towns and the receipts were in excess of one hundred dollars, mostly cash profit.

E. S. Brown, the wide-awake real estate man, urged that people quit paying rent and build. There were lots to be had and many in the Jeffersontown area had been bought through his agency and were being built up. "Count on the years you have been paying, rent - then look forward to the years to come," he advised. "This is the year to 'buy' and 'build' and can offer 'terms.' The Kentucky State Fair dates for 1938, forty years ago, were September 14 through 19. (This year, 1948, the fair is giving $50,000 in premiums.)

THE GARDEN

Vegetable Storage II

Last week the winter storage of sweet potatoes and squashes was discussed; today that of white potatoes, cabbage and the root crops, beets, turnips and carrots is to be covered.

All these are "cool" vegetables, which is to say that their storage temperature should lie between 40 to 60 degrees. Also, the storage place should be fairly humid. Both these conditions are ideally met in a house-cellar, but in a room separate from that in which the furnace is. When there is no such place, "pitling" or burying is an excellent substitute. In Kentucky Extension Circular 266, suggestions are given for making a pit arranged for being ventilated to keep the air within it sweet and fresh and to hold the humidity as it should be. Also, a "barrel pit" is described that performs quite nicely, and is simple to construct.

Another form of storage is the outside cellar or cave, and many gardeners have their provisions with an outlet ventilator through the ceiling, but often lacking a means for admitting fresh air at the floorline. Such an air-intake should be at least as large as the outlet, and in many instances it is not much of a job to cut such an opening through the wall. The proper size of each ventilator is that the area in square inches should be that of the floor in square feet. A makeshift intake, where there are two doors, can be made by sawing a three-inch strip off the bottom of the inner door and hinging it back. To ventilate the cave, on mild days open the outer door but leave the inner area closed. On severe cold days, however, a makeshift is to hang sacks or tarpaulin across the door opening, clearing the floor by three inches, leaving the door open.

If the gardener is planning to build a storage cellar, he should find Circular 266 of help. It describes ways for building with a variety of materials ranging from sod and plank to concrete and stone.

Old-Time Kitchen Given Modern Look

Without doing any remodeling Mrs. Newland May of Garrard County converted a big, old-fashioned kitchen, requiring hundreds of steps daily, into a pretty, modern one. A member of the Antioch Homeless Club, Mrs. May learned in lessons on kitchen planning what made a handy workroom for the housewife. As a result, she moved all of the equipment used in food preparation to one corner of the room, arranging it in U-shape in the approved manner. A dinette table and chairs also were included.

In the remainder of the pretty kitchen papered in green, yellow and red paper, she has a larger dining center, storage closets for her child's clothing and playthings, a closet for canned foods needed in an emergency, a broom and a convenient place to rest.

FARM MACHINERY NEEDS

Farmers need more agricultural machinery. One reason they're not getting it, is that manufacturers aren't obtaining enough steel. Last week, members of the Senate Small Business Committee completed a report on this situation, for transmittal to the Commerce Department. This report would seem to indicate that a voluntary steel allocation program for small makers of farm machinery may be necessary. Many manufacturers are apparently getting their supplies from the grey market.

OF THEM WE SING... Far from the terrors and perfections of Soviet Russian enemies, some and daughters of anti-Soviet Russian families sing a loud and clear anthem of liberty at the annual child-dren's festival held at Reed farm, the Tuley foundation refuge for White Russians in Rockland county, N. Y. It was at this farm that Mrs. Chas. Kesselman first sought refuge from the Soviets.

BE MARKET WISE

By Miriam Kelley

Field Agent in Marketing and Consumer Information, Department of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, U.S.D.A. Co-operating.

It's school time. That means school lunches, either packed at home or prepared and served at school. Would you like to eat the lunch you packed for your child this morning? Was it attractive and nutritious - will it provide the energy and food value to help the child stay full of pep and able to study?

If good habits in foods have been established at home, the problem of preparing a variety of nutritious foods for lunch at school will be easy. If lunch is eaten at school, that means a third of the day meals away from home. That school lunch must be planned to adequately complete the foods needed for the whole day. A good school lunch will help the child feel satisfied during the afternoon, prevent restlessness and help the child keep his mind on studies at hand.

Milk is important. The thermos bottle may be used for cold milk, or when days are cooler for hot soup.

Sandwiches are always popular. Consider vegetable combinations as inexpensive sandwich fillings. Vegetables too help include a number of food values that might not be gotten in the meats otherwise.

Shredded cabbage, grated carrots, chopped onion, salad dressing.

Grated carrots, shredded lettuce, chopped pineapple.

Shredded lettuce, shredded raw spinach leaves, hard cooked egg salad dressing.

Don't overlook the opportunity to use cottage cheese in sandwiches.

Cottage cheese, curaway seed, onion juice, salad dressing.

Cottage cheese, chopped cucumber, onion juice, salad dressing.

Cottage cheese, chopped sweet pickle, chopped peanuts, salad dressing.

Plan ahead to have something different each day for the school lunch. Keep the school lunch in mind as other meals are planned and prepared.

Soil Improvements

On Small Farms Give Startling Results

How soil improvement on a 70-acre farm in Warren County multiplied returns almost four times in ten years, is related in the annual report of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky.

At the start, the farm was a low producer, 20 acres being without, idle land covered with weeds and bushes. As a result of soil improvement, all the crops made more productive, and the volume of crops and pasture the tenth year was nearly 30 percent greater.

The value of crops, at 1938-39 average prices, increased each year. For best results use at $12.58 the tenth year. At prices paid for farm products in the past few years, the difference would have been much greater.

The soil improvements were mainly the use of green-manure crops, sod or cover crops during winter, and the application of limestone, fertilizers and manure. Liberal seedings of grass-legume mixtures were made throughout the period. Carrying capacity of the pasture increased from one animal per one to three to five acres to one animal per one to two acres.

To help save the soil from washing away, terraces were made in four fields. One field made for cultivation was drained and changed into productive cropland. Fences were replaced in some fields. These improvements helped to conserve the land and to increase production.

Chick Cods Produced From Chicken-Fed Mink

The poultry raising habits of wild mink provided a tip for economy in the feeding of mink raised in captivity, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. About a million mink raised for fur in the United States in 1947 supplied more than half of the pelts for the highly favored fur coats.

For years horse meat and fish have been staples in supply of the meat these animals require. The replacement of millions of farm horses by tractors, plus an increase in use of horse meat in commercial pet foods, plus some expert demand, has made the supply of horse meat increasingly scarce and expensive, says the Bureau of Animal Industry. Fondness of mink for poultry suggested the feeding of mink of the wastes from poultry dressing plants—the heads, feet, and entrails.

Late Blight Warning

"Watch those Potatoes as Tomatoes!" Late blight warnings have been received from our neighbor state of Indiana. When the temperature drops to 60 degrees at night, and doesn't go much above 60 during the warm part of the day, there is danger of blight. Blight is also favored by rains, so since we have been so dry, the danger is less.

And, if used before the blight gets started. You will also want to be on the look out for potato bugs and tomato fruit worm which bores holes in the fruit, and the large tobacco hornworm which can strip the leaves off tomatoes in a hurry. Most any of the general garden sprays containing 1 per cent rotenone or 3 to 5 per cent D.D.T. along with copper will give satisfactory protection from both insects and diseases. This time of year, with cool nights and dew, it would be a proper spraying or dusting late in the afternoon just before dark. The spray material helps when plants are beginning to moisten at night and this also gives a full night feeding for the bugs before the sun shines on the treated plants.

Plant Cover Crops Now

Now is an excellent time to plant part of the garden in a good cover crop. Clean up all the old dried-up bean vines, weeds, tomato vines, corn stalks and so forth and have a nice brown fire. Fire will destroy millions of diseases, germs, insects and weed seed. It will prevent part of your troubles next year. Work all this section of the garden as if you were preparing for a new garden then seed at once to a good cover crop. This cover crop will protect the soil from leaching and erosion during the winter months and will add valuable humus and matter for growing a better garden next year. Any of the small grains make good cover crops, but barley, wheat and winter oats are preferred by many gardeners to rye. It is well to add crimson clover and vetch to the small grain to add extra nitrogen to the soil. A good seeding would be two bushels of small grain plus ten pounds of vetch and five pounds of crimson clover per acre. Don't be afraid of using too much seed in a cover crop. Remember to fertilize this cover crop. Don't be afraid of using at least 400 pounds of complete fertilizer per acre. Broadcast and work into the soil as you prepare the seed bed. The sooner you plant this cover crop, the better it will be, but plant it even if you can't get the job done until October 15.

Women Store Meats In Freezer Lockers

The high price of meat at local butcher shops is of little concern to thrifty rural homemakers in Bourbon County, who can go to their storage cellar or freezer locker for steaks, roasts or other home-produced meat. This is the result of a fair fight between wives, who during the past year froze 23,844 pounds of beef, pork, veal and poultry, cured 25,958 pounds and canned 1,633 quarts.

To further reduce the cost of living, said Miss Marion Bartlett, home demonstration agent, they canned 5,844 quarts of vegetables and froze 1081 pounds, practically all of the produce having been grown in home gardens. Then they canned 6,183 quarts of fruit and froze 6,072 pounds.

Beechland Baptist Church was properly arranged in decorations of palms and white candles which lighted the church for the wedding of Miss Katherine Tabor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Tabor, of Pleasant Ridge, and Mr. Alvin S. Hollis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hollis, of Greenwood Road, that was solemnized Tuesday at 8 P. M. with Rev. R. P. Dill officiating.

The organist, Mrs. William J. Clark, presided and Mrs. Lloyd Tabor sang "Dawning" and "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white duchess satin made with a sheer yolk and full cathedral train and fingertip veil of illusion held in place by a heart shape crown of lace and she carried white gladioli.

Miss Hollis, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and Miss Joyce Barth was bridesmaid. They wore orchid and green gowns with matching bonnets and carried corona gladioli.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis left for a wedding trip to the Great Smoky Mountains.

The W.M.S. is to meet Thursday, September 16, for the day as usual at the church. The Adult Class of Ladies, taught by Mrs. S. S. Foss, will hold their next meeting on Tuesday afternoon, September 21, with Mrs. Ella Murphy of Pleasant Ridge Park, who is the hostess.

Mrs. Paul D. Miller and little Mrs. Hollis left for a wedding trip to the Great Smoky Mountains.

Mrs. Mary Swearingen has rented her apartment, formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harben, Jr., to Mr. and Mrs. William of Louisville. They are members of Carlisle Church.

Mrs. Murphy, who accompanied her son and his wife to Hazard, Ky., for a three weeks' visit with her older daughter, Mrs. Clarence Comb and husband, was their motor guest home Friday until Sunday when they returned home. The son, Mr. John Murphy and wife, left Hazard, Ky. last week for their home at Micanopy, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shively, of Shively, Ky., are leaving early Saturday for Dade City, Florida, and will take Mrs. Bell Baker, mother of Mrs. Swearingen, with them for a lengthy visit.

We just heard that Charles Dye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dye, met with a serious accident Saturday evening while he and a friend were coming home on motorcycles. He was taken to the Nichols Hospital in a serious condition.

Sympathy is extended Mrs. W. B. Kennedy on the recent death of her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Cawardine left home two weeks ago in their new Nash with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ziegler, for points of interest out west, including Yellowstone Park, Salt Lake City, Painted Desert and many other places. We received cards telling of wonderful time and lovely scenes. They will return via the northern route and see different scenery all the way.

Mrs. Barton Hutchinson and little daughter came home from the northern route and see different scenery all the way.

Walter B. Gibson is getting along nicely after an operation on August 27 at Norton Infirmary. We hope he will be able to return home in a few days.

George Silliman, Jr., returned from Kingsport, Tenn. last Thursday. His family spent most of the night at the bus station waiting for him to come home without him. So when he did arrive they found his bus had to make a hundred and thirty mile detour, thus the delay.

George Silliman, Jr., and Harlan motored to Flarey, Ky. for the day Sunday.

We stopped by and said hello to Macy Riley, who is entering his ninth week at Norton Infirmary. He looks fine and is very cheerful and optimistic.
